Fundamentally, we are all about keeping people safe and for me one of the main ways that we do that is by protecting the vulnerable and managing those that we know or believe to be dangerous.

Chair of the NPCC

ACRO's collaboration with the Jamaican Constabulary Fund is just as much about safer communities here in the UK, as it is about international policing.

The ability of my officers on the streets of Bristol, for instance, to check a person's criminal conviction history and get that information back in a timely manner is crucial.

ACRO's work in improving response times with Jamaica is undoubtedly helping us better manage threat and reduce risk and harm.

Chief Constable Andy Marsh QPM

Our visit to ACRO was a real pleasure. We appreciated so much the warm welcome we were given by everyone and there was a very special atmosphere throughout which spoke of caring as well as efficiency and this was very reassuring.
